Parental Alienation Study Group provides several online educational programs that are intended for parents, mental health professionals, and legal professionals. See the choices here ...

Complimentary Courses for Professionals and Parents. Together with the National Coalition Against Parental Alienation (NCAPA), the Parental Alienation Study Group (PASG) offers two online courses regarding parental alienation—at no cost to participants. One course is primarily intended for mental health and legal professionals; the second course is primarily intended for alienated parents. The programs last about two hours; there is no fee; these programs are not accredited for continuing education. Access the online courses at <http://ncapa.thinkific.com/>.

Continuing Education Primarily Intended for Psychologists. Together with the National Association of Parental Alienation Specialists (NAOPAS), PASG offers a two-hour video that is primarily intended for psychologists. This course is cosponsored with The Center for Human Potential of America, Inc., which is an approved sponsor of continuing education for psychologists. The Center for Human Potential of America is responsible for the content of the program. The fee is $70. The video consists of three parts: an explanation of the Five-Factor Model for the diagnosis of parental alienation; an explanation of why parents who engage in alienating behaviors are committing both family violence and child psychological abuse; and a video by an alienated parent. Continuing Education Intended for Attorneys and Mental Health Professionals.

We believe this is the most extensive online training regarding parental alienation available anywhere. This program has been approved for 15 hours of continuing legal education (CLE) credits by The Florida Bar. Attorneys from other states may also be eligible for these credits if their own state's bar association has a reciprocal agreement regarding CLE's with The Florida Bar. Many states do.

Also, this program has been approved for 15 hours of continuing education (CE) credits by The Center for Human Potential of America, Inc., which is an approved sponsor of continuing education for psychologists. The Center for Human Potential of America is responsible for the content of the program. Other mental health professionals may also receive CE credits if their licensing board accepts educational programs provided by sponsors approved by the American Psychological Association. Many licensing boards for mental health professionals, other than psychologists, accept APA sponsors' programs.
